We would state for the information of students that the orthography of many words in this sermon is archaical and not used in modern spelling.

In the fourth paragraph from the bottom Father Carroll gives a gentle hint to some "High-school officials for their dilatoriness in introducing the teaching of Irish in them, on the flimsy pretext of the paucity of professors competent to teach Irish. The pretext is a fraud. Here are Irish scholars as competent to teach Irish as the professors in their colleges are to teach English, Latin, French, etc — Reverends Thos. J. Fitzgerald, Brooklyn, N. ### THE ASS and THE GRASSHOPPER.

AN Ass hearing some Grasshoppers singing, was delighted with the music, and determined, if he could, to rival them, asked them what it was that they fed upon to make them sing so sweetly? When they told him that they supped upon nothing but dew, the Ass betook himself to the same diet, and soon died of hunger.

One man's meat is another man's poison.

AIR, SAW FROM THE BEACH.

No place in the world like matchless green Erin,
Her verdure unfading remain to be seen,
The blooming hawthorn her fresh laurels to earn,
Sends forth her sweet odor to enliven the scene;
The lark and linnet sweet songs are exchanging,
The blackbird serenading his dear ones with glee,
The thrush in the valley sweet notes is rehearsing
The white trout unceasingly sports in the lee.

But sad to look on the glad summer decaying,
Then sweet bloom is fading, and winter sets in,
The rose of the valley, when blushes are failing,
Is anxious to leave, and don't care for her kin;
Thus with my vigor and strength both forsak'd me,
Melancholy seized me—it was vain to resist—
In exile from friends without youth to sustain me,
Alas! I am aged, and I had to desist.

Farewell to dear Erin, she is my affection sincerely
No friendship awaits me away from her shore,
Farewell to her martyrs, they lov'd our Lord dearly
With his true cross he sav'd them his name we adore,
Farewell to her sons, now in heavny keeping,
Farewell to her people bereaved of their homes,
Farewell to the graves where our fathers lie sleeping,

Farewell to the green sedge that shelters their bones

There are prayers without blessing for the tyrants
of Erin, [east,
They've banish'd her legions south, west, north and
From homes where morals and sanctity reigned in.
There nothing remain now but the foreigner's beast
Friends and companions who in young days did greet us,

They are old and feeble or, alas! lying low
After ages of torture from a monster most hideous,
Ireland's left weeping and her heart's blood to flow

With untold slaughter and horor the despotic demon
Has tortured poor Erin and martyr'd her creed,
With pitch cap and gallows, his infernal creation,
He has wasted the nation and trampled her breed.
When the bloodthirsty Saxon is banish'd from Erin
Her green flag yet stainless shall once more be free
"With true men like yon men," Red Knight sons of Erin,
For the tyrant's desolation all men will agree.

THE DUBLIN REPORT.

The Report of the Dublin Society for the Preservation of the Irish Language for 1895 is very encouraging as it shows a steady increase in the number of pupils who passed in Irish both from the National and Christian Brothers' Schools.

The number presented for examination from the National schools was 1,181, of whom 706 passed. The number of pupils who passed from the Intermediate schools was 528—making the total of passes 1,234.

The Irish language was taught in 59 of the National schools. We have no record of the number of the Brothers' schools in which it was taught, but as their pupils numbered over five-sevenths of those who passed, it is reasonable to suppose that it had been taught in about 100 schools altogether; and it is expected that the year '96 will show a large increase in the roll of Gaelic students.

At the annual Examination for Teachers in '95, the following received Certificates of competency to teach Irish and earn Results Fees.—

John O'Riordan, Dunloy, Antrim.
Prtrick Collins, Moveen (M), Kilkee Clare.
Brother O'Mullane, Cove (1), Queenstown, Cork.
Patrick Daly, Rathcormac (M), Cork.
Patrick Barry, Gortroe (M), "
John Lehane, Ballingeary (M), Macroom, Cork.
Ellen Flahive, Vicarstown, Dingle, Kerry.
Katherine O'Malley, Kilmilkin, Maam, Galway.
Thomas Walsh, Cluinbroon, Cornamona, "
Annie Convoy, Omey Island, Clifden, " Nicholas J D'Arcy, Clydagh, Headford, "
John O'Toole, Aughrusmore, Clifden, " Hanoria Timoney, Garrafraun, Dunmore, "
Patrick Joyce, Tierne (M), Carraroe, "
James Karney, Aughleam, Belmullet, Mayo.
Anthony Lavelle, The Valley, Dugort. "

[Where, Oh where, is the "Premier (?) County? Gaels hailing from the neighborhood of these Teachers should send the Gael to them in appreciation of their patriotic efforts.—Ed. G.]

The Cleaver Prizes were a great stimulus to teachers to teach Irish to their classes and, also, to their pupils to learn it. Hence the Irish societies in this country should see to it that these Prizes be continued. Every Gaelic society in America should issue collecting cards and canvass every well-to-do Irishman in its town or city and send the result directly to the Rev. Father Ryan of the Providence R. I., society. That society paid $50. out of its own private fund in support of the object. Let, then, all put their shoulders to the wheel.

To get the Gaelic Journal. Send 6s to the Manager, Mr. John Hogan, 8 Leeson Park-avenue, Dublin, Ireland.

The first division of the A. O. Hibernians to respond to the suggestion in last Gael is that of Division 2., Burlington, Ia., through Secretary M. W. Hagerty. Mr J J Redmond, Dover, N. H expects the three divisions of the Order there to fall into line; and Mr. John Healy of Brideport, Conn., reports that County President Joseph C Ivers has promised to bring the matter before the various divisions of the county. Mr. J. J Burke, Cleveland, O., is, also, working to the same end.

Now we hope that every Gael who is a member of the Order will try to get his division to become a subscriber; and that every Gael who is not a member will canvass the divisions of his vicinity, and report the result. If such canvassed divisions do not favorably respond, then, it is not because of the expense involved—ONE CENT a year per Member—but because they do not desire the preservation and cultivation of the Irish Language and, hence, of Irish Nationality, howsoever they may boast to the contrary.

Behold what effect our proposition would have. It would advertise the Gaelic Movement all over the land, encourage the workers in the cause at home, and bring public opinion to bear on a certain class of persons in Ireland who pretend to be Irish in word, but who are Saxon in deed.

Now, we expect to hear from every Gael on this subject.

San Juan, Argentine Republic,
Feb. 10. 1896.

Mr M. J. Logan.

Dear Sir.—Please find enclosed draft of the London & River Plate Bank Buenos Ayres on their house in London in your favour for One Pound St., the proceeds of which please apply, first on any arrears of my subscription to the Gaodhal that may exist, second my subscription to same for two years, and whatever may be over please distribute in Gaodhals to worthy people who may be working in the cause in Ireland and to whom you think it may do good. Do me the favour to let me know—in a sub-note in Gaodhal—how I stand, that is, up to what date sub. is paid.

In Ireland the Gaelic cause seems to be going ahead. In the States the Gaelic speakers seem to be afraid or too lazy to put their thoughts in print in the old Irish tongue—as I see all the papers confine themselves to reproductions. Good, idiomatic prose from all the counties like what the Gaelic Journal gives, is what is required to make up the new Gaelic tongue—a blend of the whole.

Yours truly, John M. Tierney.

We shall send the Gael, as usual, on the bounty of Mr. Tierney, to the Sisters of Mercy at Ballinrobe, Tuam, and Dungarvan; we know of no better place to send them.

The draft pays all to January 1897.

"A nation which allows her language to go to ruin, is parting with the best half of her intellectual independence, and testifies to her willingness to cease to exist."—ARCHBISHOP TRENCH.

"The Green Isle contained for more centuries than one, more learning than could have been collected from the rest of Europe . . . It is not thus rash to say that the Irish possess contemporary histories of their country, written in the language of the people, from the fifth century. No other nation of modern Europe is able to make a similar boast."—SPALDING'S ENGLISH LITERATURE, APPLETON & CO., NEW YORK.

SIMPLE LESSONS IN IRISH.

FOURTH SERIES.—Written for the GÆL

BY

Rev. EUGENE O'GROWNEY.

PROF OF KELTIC in Maynooth College

LESSON IV.

26. Diminutives in -ín are not all feminine; they are always of the same gender as the noun from which they are formed. Thus áitín, páipéin, lájhín, bhróisín, are feminine; while aigálín, a little ass; bájósín, bót-dájósín or bójérsín (bōh·reen) are masculine.

27. Words ending in -ón are masculine; as, rpealatónír, a mower, bádónír (baudh'-ór), a boatman; aijteir-eónír (an'ish-ór), a wretched person; léjéceónír (læ'hōr), a reader. The same is true of words in -éin, as reilméin and reilméin (fel'-em-ər), a farmer, taken from the English. All these fall under the same rule as ríajé and other words denoting male beings.

28. Do dī bájósín beag deair aí aí jaigáin. Atá bhróisíní beag deair aíci, ríadair ís aí aí marbhád í (it). Atá bhraca tū aí bhréiní beag bujde atá inír aí tobar? Atoubairt (said) Níomha go ríad bhratádai inír aí aí daíon, aict éas iníe aí cluair doðar (the deaf ear) dī. Atá leat-rá aí aí cnuicíni blair úd? Ní ljom, jr le reilméin eile aí aí aít bheag úd. Ná cuair aí tóillaito hóní éinom úd aí aí aigálín; atá ré níos-fír.

29. There was a little green field on the hill. The reader will have a good Irish book then, and he will be glad. The reader did not see that word in the book. The boatman is not on the lake to day, he is in bed, he is sick, he has a cold. Was there not great cold and frost last night? I think we shall not have frost to night, the weather is too soft.

LESSON V.

Words ending in a vowel.

30. A. All words in -ne, ajne, denoting persons, are masculine; as, tjm̄e (tim'-hir-ē), a messenger, teac- tajne (tach'-thar-ē), a messenger, ao ajne (æ'-är-ē), a shepherd.

31. B. All words in -de, ajde, uđe, denoting persons, are masculine; as, r̄zeulujđe, a storyteller, rañuđe (raun'-ee), a very thin person, r̄sláðuđe (sglauv-ee), a labourer.

32. C. Abstract nouns ending in a vowel are usually feminine; as, tr̄os-ajne (thrōk-ärē), mercy, tuđre, weariness. Those derived from adjectives are all feminine; as, ȝile (gil-ē), brightness; from ȝeal, r̄ajlte, welcome (literally, gladness, from r̄ajlid, OLD IRISH, glad.)

33. Of the 180 nouns given in Part I., these rules decide the gender of 145; that is, about 75 per cent; and out of the 170 nouns in Part II., all but 23, or over 85 per cent.

LESSON VI.

34. Exceptional.—The words cajle (kal-ē), a woman (rarely used), cajlsj (kal-leen) a girl, see Section 26, ȝeadur cajle, a girl, are masculine, although the persons represented by them are of course female. Hence these words are not aspirated in the nominative case by the article, nor is the following adjective aspirated; as, jr̄ majc aŋ cajlsj ī, jr̄ cajlsj beađ ī, coñhajc r̄e ȝeadur-cajle beađ aŋ aŋ m̄-bóčar, aŋ cajlsj deař. Of course, the feminine pronoun is used.

35. The words r̄tajl, a stallion, and r̄zolóđ (sgúl-ōg), an old man, are feminine. jr̄ r̄tajl ȝreadāđ ē, b̄ r̄zolóđ ȝođ aŋ iŋt̄ aŋ ȝeumhne. The masculine pronoun is, of course, used.

36. Ships, boats, etc. are usually personified and spoken of as female. jr̄ loŋs ȝreadāđ ī r̄ud. The word loŋs presents no difficulty, as it is feminine but the word háđ, a boat, curnac (kur-ūch), a canoe, r̄ořčeađ (see'-hāch), a vessel, ářčađ (aur-hāch, properly eđ-riac), a vessel, follow the general rule and are masculine; hence we find, jr̄ ȝreadāđ aŋ háđ ī ro, nać deař aŋ r̄ořčeađ ī r̄iŋ? feuć aŋ t-ářčađ aŋ uđiř, nać h-álumhj ařčađ ī; ruđar Coñh curnac nađař, ařčađ ī ſjor aŋ aŋ uřze.

37. There is in modern Irish no feminine terminatin like -ess in English Jewess, authoress etc., which can be added to nouns; hence we say jr̄ r̄zeulujđe majc ē or jr̄, the noun remaining masculine; jr̄ teac-tajne majc ī.

38. So with words that can be applied to both sexes, jr̄ ȝauđe majc ē, n̄ ȝauđe majc ī. Here ȝauđe remains masculine, even when reference is made to a woman. jr̄ majc aŋ pâjrdē ī. jr̄ majc aŋ reađrađ (shar'-ăch, Munster shär-och') ē or jr̄, a good foal. Nać ȝreadāđ aŋ capall ē or jr̄, is not this a fine horse—where capall is used, in some places exclusively, for a mare.

36. For ŋ̄l a ſjor ažam, I do not know (it), they say in Munster ŋ̄ ſeadař (addher), I (you, he etc.) do not know, does not know.

40. Feuć aŋ loŋs deař aŋ aŋ ȝreadāđ ſjor—cja lejř ī? N̄ ſeadař, n̄o, n̄ ſjor a ſjor ažam ſejn cja lejř ī r̄ud, aćt ařčađ a ſjor ažam ſuri (ab) le N̄jall aŋ r̄ořčeađ m̄oř eje, ažur nać deař aŋ r̄ořčeađ ī. Jr̄ deař ſo dejħħej. aŋ ȝeuđiř aŋ loŋs ȝoř m̄oř lejř aŋ r̄ořčeađ eje? Cjonnij ařčađ Coñh aňoř, aŋ ȝeuđiř ȝreadāđ aŋ ſjor? Tâjħejc teac-tajne ařčađ, ažur dejři r̄e ſo ȝeuđiř ȝreadāđ aŋ, aćt nać m̄bēđo r̄e 'na ſuđe iŋħoju n̄a i m̄bārađ. Ařčađ teadhebađ, aŋ cajlsj beađ, ažur ȝeadur-cajle ōř. Ařčađ coñice ažur cnujħeħeacăt ařčađ aŋ ȝreadāđ ſjor t̄iŋ. Lâjř ažur ſeadař.

41. The scythe belongs to the mower. That is a fine mower, he is working well indeed. God bless your work, Patrick. "The old woman is a fool," says the girl, but Nora said that the old woman was not ( $\eta\alpha\rho\delta\ \sigma\eta\tau\epsilon\alpha\zeta$ ) a fool, that she had sense. There was great smoke in the house, and Conn thought there was a fire in it. The poor widow is at the door, with her bag (and her bag with her,  $\Delta\gamma\zeta\gamma$ ) We have dirty weather now. The little shamrock is growing in the grass. The moon is full and bright.

An Old Man found a rude Boy up in one of his trees stealing apples he told him to come down but the young saucebox would not Then the Old Man took up some tufts of grass and threw them at him this made the youngster laugh to think that he should pretend to beat him down off the tree with grass only. "Well, well," said the Old Man, "if neither words nor grass will do I must try what virtue there is in stones." So he pelted him heartily with stones, which made the youngster hasten down from the tree and beg the Old Man's pardon

It is said that Cardinals Gibbons, Logue and Vaughan are striving to bring about arbitration as a means of settling international disputes. The Gael endorses the idea if it commence ab initio—not otherwise.

Had old Grainne pelted Johny Bull with stones instead of grass he would have descended from her apple tree long ago, and would have begged her pardon, too. Grainne has got what her pusillanimity deserves—the chains of slavery!

WHERE IRISHMEN CAN CALL AND GET Gratuitous Instruction In The Language Of Their Country.

The Boston Philo Celtic Society (organized 1873), meets every Sunday in St. Rose Hall, 117 Worcester street, from 3 to 7 P. M., and Wednesday evenings at 6 Whitmore st. from 8 to 10.

For what reason we leave the reader to surmise, but it is a fact that Irish-Americans generally manifest a diffidence in expatiating on any matter relating to the past condition of their ancestors; of this we have had some experience from our conduct of THE GÆL, for, with few patriotic exceptions, our Irish-American Editors do not notice it, as if fearful that the evidence which its existence supplies of the high order of civilization and learning which obtained in Ireland before its pollution by the Gotho-Saxon brutes who rule to-day, was a myth; not even do they bring the Rev. Professor O'Growney's Simple Lessons in Irish to the notice of their readers, as if fearful, too, that they would procure them and learn something of their country and its literature. How different they are in their conceptions regarding passing historical events from educated, liberal, Americans. On Sunday, March 28th, the New York Sun, the scholarly and, without qualification, the best AMERICAN paper published in America, had this to say, in its editorial columns, of the Gael.—

"We commend to the attention of scholars an interesting periodical published in Brooklyn, printed mainly in Irish, and entitled the Gael. Irishmen should liberally support this publication, because it is the first and the only strictly Irish paper published in North America."

We have received from the Hon Secretary of the Gaelic League Belfast, Ireland, Mr E Morrissey, a handsome programme of an Irish entertainment which came off in that city lately. The Gaelic songs rendered were these:—

Eolais a Rúin; Tráinneadhaoil; Páirte Fionn; and Ail Cúlán.

From the general programme here is no doubt but there was a tod time. Dr. Boyd is President of the League.

GERMANO-CELTIC.

We have received a pamphlet entitled Zeitschrift Fur Celtische Philologie, by Kuno Meyer, and published by David Nutt, 270 Strand, London. It has these papers:

- R Thurneysen Meber einige Formen der Copula im Irischen
- J. Strachan, Some note on the Millian Glosses
- Wh Stokes A Celtic leechbook
- W. M. Lindsay, Breton and old French glosses in Harleian, etc
- H. Gaidoz, La cosmologie celtique.
- H. Gaidoz Lnnwn
- H. Gaidoz, Quelques mots gallois d'origine latine
- E. Ernault, Sur la mutation faible de d apres n en breten.

- P. M C Kermode A Welsh inscription in the Isle of Man (with plate)
- J. Rhys, Note on Guriat.
- J. Strachan, A Manx folksong;
- Wh. Stokes, Cummin's poem on the Saints of Ireland.
- H. Zimmer, Beiträge zur Erklärung irischer Sagentexte.
- K. Meyer, Goire Conaill Chernaig i Cruachain ocus aided Ailella 7 Conaill Chernaig.
- K. Meyer, Two middle-Irish soems.
- R Henebry, Conach.
- L. Chr. Stern, Die irische Handschrift in Stockholm.
- L. Chr. Stern, Ein irisches Leben der heiligen Margarete.
- R Henebry, An unpublished poem by W. English.
- D O'Foharta Cú báin aŋ t-Sléjde. Erschiene Schriften.

This is a very interesting pamphlet of the series. We shall publish the poem of Wm English and Cú báin aŋ t-Sléjde. The old readers of the Gael cannot fail to observe that the "R Henebry" mentioned here is the Celtic Professor-elect of the Catholic University.

The Brooklyn Philo-Celtic Society is getting along nicely. At its regular meeting on April 5th it expressd its admiration for the Right Revd Bishop of Raphoe in the following terms:

Whereas, The mission of this Philo-Celtic Society being the cultivation and preservation of the Irish language, it hails with delightful pleasure the actions of all persons tending to promote that object, And

Whereas, The Rt. Revd. Patrick O'Donnell, Lordbishop of Raphoe, county Donegal, has, in his recent Lenten Pastoral, urged the priests and people of his diocese to preserve and cultivate the National language, Be it, therefore,

Resolved, That the grateful thanks of all Irish men, at home and abroad, are due to his Lordship for his noble, patriotic, action, and that this Society affectionately tenders his Lordship the same.

Resolved, That the foregoing preamble and resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Society and a certified copy of them transmitted to his Lordship.

Thomas Galligan,
Secretary.

Thomas Jordan,
Prest. pro tem.

Since our last issue, Death has laid his heavy hand on three of the Gael's devoted supporters—Father Hennessy of Jersey City; Dr. William O'Meagher of New York, and Mr. Timothy Mann of Lawrence, Mass.—May eternal peace be their lot.

The Gael is very sorry to see the name of Cardinal Gibbons in company with Cardinals Logue and Vaughan attached to a document whose purpose is to fortify England in her diabolical raid on humanity. Why in the name of all that is human did we not hear the voice of Cardinal Vaughan raised in behalf of the Connemara boy Joyce who was strangled to death by his government?

Why not suggest arbitration between England and the weak nations which she browbeats? Here is where the shameless effrontery of Englishmen come in. There shall be no arbitration between the United States and England while there is a single red coat in Ireland or a British flag in North America.

The American Irish are a good deal different from those in Ireland, a fact not to be forgotten.
