

Philo-Celts.

Let every one remember Wednesday, the 13th of August, at Scheutzen Park, when the Brooklyn Philo Celts hold their annual picnic. That will be the one day in the year which shows that there was ever such a thing as an Irish Nation. Here is where the sweet language of the Gael will be heard in its pristine purity from the lips of the thousands who scorn to barter the language of their sires for that of the "slave". Here may be seen the only legitimate heirs of those illustrious sages whose respendent virtues and learning during the Dark Ages of Europe, extracted from the surrounding nations the title for their country of "The Island of Saints and Scholars." Here may be seen the pioneers of a regenerated Ireland, calm collected, with the impress of self-reliance on their foreheads and independent defiance in their demeanor, in a word, there may be seen men and women standing to their full height, conscious of inheriting from a noble ancestry those principles of virtue and morality characteristic of their nation and which centuries of oppression and tyranny and the contiguous Sodomatic abominations of England could not pervert. The contemplation of these truths should enkindle a glow of pride in the heart of every Irishman. He should remember that the word Irish was a synonym with all that is noble in human nature until the tares of Anglo Saxon beastiality got intermixed with his race. This is no mere rhetoric, but is a fact supported and demonstrated by ancient and modern-aye, and very modern-witnesses ! Then you Irishmen and women who desire to preserve and perpetuate those noble traits of your ancestry, go to your Irish picnic on the 13th and enjoy a day of amusement in company with your fellow-countrymen, embued with the same sentiments. In addition to Prof. Sweeney's excellent orchester, Mr. Burke and other eminent pipers will discourse Irish music in all its varieties during the evening and the membres of the P. C. S. will greet you with a genuine

Ceuo mile ráilce.

President Finn and the other officers of the so cety—Messrs. Heeney, Hyland etc. whom we mentioned in the last Gael are more attentive to duty since. A little rub to absentees now and again is not out of place.

The Misses Murray and Dunlevy are also very attentive,—so they ought. Both are not only Gaelic scholars, but English scholars as well.

Mrs. and the Miss Donnellys are the most regular attendants of our lady members. When Miss E. Donnelly is a little more advanced with her Gaelic studies, she will, from her splendid voice be a great addition to our Gaelic Choral Union.

The Misses Kearney and Guiren are also regular in their attendance, and making splendid progress in their studies.

Mr. Mullanny though only a few months joined is one of our best readers, but he lisped it in his youth.

Gilgannon We must give Mr Gilgann on a little rub, he has been absent quite often of late.

Messrs. Lacey Graham and Morrissey are very fair attendants. They have been appointed as delegates to confer with our N. Y. friends regarding the future of the Irish Language movement.

Messrs: Kinsella Walsh, and Sloan are very attentive lately.

Our old brother member P. M Cassidy is back again, and is determined to push his studies to perfection.

Mr Monahan is gone to Europe.

Mr. Dowd is absent quite often.

A large number of our lady members are in the country, including the Misses Costello and Brennan:

We presume the Hon. D. Burns is up the mountains, we have not seen him lately.

Counsellor J. C. McGuire is visiting his native home on the Shannon.

The Miss Crowleys are marked absent since sum. mer set in. We presume they are in the Catskills

Mr. Dunning is one of our most expert scholars he has mastered the First Book in one month.

Sergt: at-arms Flaherty won the race at the Emmet Guard's picnic.

Mr. Lennon is amending in his attendance.

We have not seen our friend Mr. Kyne in a long time—Why? Also, Wm. Sarfield Casey.

Judge Courtney used to give an odd run into the hall. What has come over him, > 506 Myrtle av. Brooklyn, July 8th 1884.

M. J. Logan, Esq.

Dear Sir .- A few more numbers will complete the third volume of the Gael, and I write to ask you, if convenient, to publish in the last number of the present volume, an index or table of contents for the second and third volumes, though the index were to occupy all or most of said number. I find it impossible to procure all the numbers of the first volume, but I have carefully preserved the numbers of the second and third, and like the majority of your subscribers, I intend to have them neatly and substantially bound with the index The two volumes bound in one will form a useful and very interesting book, and the want of an accurate index would be felt by all who will have occasion to use or study the numerous lessons, songs, correspondence &c. which the work contains. In conclusion I hope that the number of subscribers for the fourth or next volume will be doubled, and this would be but a light task if each subscriber would procure another, and send on both subscriptions promptly at the end of this volume, or immediately if possible. I am thankful for the interest you take in the preservation of the old language.

Respectfully yours,

Patrick F. Lacy.

(Lae Ladex will be conn need ia the asx'-El)

THE GAELIC ALPHABET.
Irish.	Roman.	S und	ris .	Roman.	Bound.
A	8	aw	m	m	emm
b	b	bay	ŋ	n	enn
C	C	kay	0	0	oh
Ø	d	dhay	p	р	pay
е	е	ay	n.	r	arr
F	f	eff	r	8	ess
3	g	gay	c	t	thay
1	g i	ee	11	u	00
1	1	ell			00

b and in sound like w when followed or preceded by A, O, u, as, A bápo, his bard, pronounced a wardh; A manc, his beef or ox, pronounced, a warth; and like v when preceded by e, 1, as, A bean, his wife, pronounced, a van, A mjan, his desire, pronounced, a vee-un o and 5 sound like y at the beginning of a word; they are almost silent in the middle and perfectly so at the end of words. Ċ sounds like ch; p, like f; + and t. like h; and + is silent.

LESSONS-Ceotinued

21 DUINGREAC AJUY AN CUORA-

Vocabulary. Pronunciation bajnopeac, a widow. baintrucgh. Ajnj5ce, special, particular, awrihe. caona, a sheep. cavrah. deunócad, would make. yaynugh. rocan, profit or gain, sugh-ar. olan. wool, uhl-ann beann, clip or shave' baw.ur. Jeann, cut; short. gawur. chojceann, skin, crackunn. lomnat, fleece. lhumrah. 501neann, does wound. guing-unn. meadadan. weight. mawhun cearcujzeann, want, thastheeun bnocajne, a butcher, broke.uire beannaooin, a shearer. barro-dho'irh.

υί θαιητριεαό αιριζτε απη πα μαθ αιci ac aon Caona amáin, azur cum 30 η-σεμησέας τί αη τοέαρ υμό ήσ σ'α holan, to beapp rj j co lom agur gup zeann rí a choiceann co mait leir an ιομηα; ας συθαιης αη ζαομα, ας εμάσαό ταοι η άγαισε γεο, "Οία η τας α ησοιηθαηη τά τό τραμ reo? Α τρευσόζαιο m' full meadadan na h-olla? ma tearcuizeann m' full uaje, a maizirchear, cup Fjor App 'n m-bhocappe, ce cuppear chioc ain mo plancaid ain b-puinnce; Αά τα τεαγσυβεαηη το ιοπηλό μαισ cujn Fjor Ajn An m-beanaodin, ce beannγελη η' ολλη λζηγ ηλά Ο-σλημαιησεός. Ajo mo cujo pola."

Translation.

The Widow and the Sheep.

There was a certain Widow who had an only Sheep, and, wishing to make the most of her wool, she sheared her so closely that she cut her skin as well as her fleece. The Sheep, smarting un. der this treatment, cried out,"Why do you torture me thus ? what will my blood add to the weight of the wool? If you want my blood, Dame, send for the butcher, who wll put me out of my misery at once; but if you want my fleece, send for the Shearer, who will cut my wool without drawing my blood."

21 SEUNJUN AJUR AN OORSUN.

reaca, gen. of frost, cappains, drawing. Apban, corn, leaz, lay. as to lay up. Sampajo, of Summer. cinmiužao, drying, AJAIn, to beseech, leat-dayca, half-perished, lhah-voska. zneim, a morsel beata. life, comeuo, to preserve, Anran, said, vjomaojnać, idle, r510ból, barn, o tanta, since, because. b-reuvia, thou couldst. oomrao, dancing, FAZANN, finds, shockah. thorringt. arwur. Ihag. sowry. thrim.uo. awgir. grim. bah-hah cuvayudh. arson. dheewenach skub-ole. ohawr-lhah. vaydhhaw. dhou.sah. taw.unn.

La ruan reaca to di Seanzan a canμαιης απαέ сијо σε 'η αμθαμ, ησέ σο ופאז דע דעאד אות דפאט אח כ-צאוותאוט, le η έιμημιζαό. Ο' ασαιμ Οομγαη, α of leat-darca le ochar, all an Seanzan sneim beas de a cadajne do le na beac-A cojmeuro. "Cao A bí cú 1 σευηλό An Sampas feo cuajo cant," Apran Seanz-

PHILA. PA.

αη, "Oč" αργαη Οοργαη "η μαδ της σίοήμασηθαά, σο ασηξθαιό της γειητητη αια γεαό αη σ-Satημαιζ αίιζ." Ουθαιασ απ Seanzan, α ζαιρε αζυγ α σύηαό γιαγ α γζιοθόιι, "Ó έαρία το δ-γευστά α δειά αξ γειητητη αια γεαό αη σ-Satημαιό, σις leac α δειά αιζ σοτηγιζαό αια γεαό απ ζειτημιζ."

βαζαηη αη Jejinpead amac an nuo a cuppear an Sampad ruar.

Translation.

The Ant and the Grasshopper.

On a cold frosty day an Ant was dragging out some of the corn which he leid up in summer time, to dry it. A Grasshopper, half-perished with hunger, besought the Ant to give him a morsel of it to save his life. "What were you doing." said the Ant, "this last summer ?" -'Oh.' said the Grasshopper. "I was not idle, I kept singing all the summer long." Said the Ant, laughing and shutting up his granary, "Since you could sing all summer you can dance all winter."

Winter finds out what sninner lays by.

Mr. M. J. Logan,

Dear Sir. At the solicitation of several of your readers, I send you the enclosed song for publication in THE GAEL. Its author, Peter Walsh, a native of Ballinamore, near Finatown, Co. Don-gal, died fifteen years ago. He was wholly illiterate, but his poetic genius was such, that song fl wed from his lips, as it were, spontaneously. That gifts, like his, were left uncultivated and uncared for, is a sad commentary on the misrule of Pharasaical England, who, while expending thousands annually, in educating savages in the Orient, pla ced every obstacle in the way of the cultivation of Irish genius.

Walsh's nature was buoyant, humorous, warm and kind, and his poetry, (which if collected would form a good sized volume, in every verse, bears the impress of the geneality and wit so characteristic of its author. That he was possessed of wit and originality of conception, I think none will deny as to his ability for clothing his conceptions in appropriate verse, $t \ emult$ 'n as here presented, does not, I fear, offer a fair criterion. It must be borne in mind, that Walsh's songs have never been committed to paper, that we have them only traditionally as it were, that they must have undergone many changes, in passing from tongue to tongue, among a people, ignorant of Irish grammatical rules and that this song is, now written for the first time and by one who, however well inclined, is not capable of doing it justice. Should it, however, meet with favor, and should you desire it, I can furnish the Gael with a number of Walsh's songs. I am promised several. For the enclosed I am indebted to Mr. Jas. Timony of this city,

Respectfully yours,

A. P. WARD.

21N 2JUJLCJN,

Peacan breathad no can.

Ο΄ πυιίτη δεας αξαπγά αιη τέμιο, 'ζυγ ης γέ ιοη κέιη α ιοιη'; ζυγ ο' αξαιη γέ πεγε το ξευμ 'S ηαό γεαγόταο Ε΄ιρε α μιηη: "Μ΄ αταμόταο γιαο πεγε αιη κεαό ιαε, σά π'αγηατά ξευμ, 'γ πο όροη; 'Sηίορ δ'εαζαί ζο ματκαιηη-γε αιη γτραε Οα ηξειόε ίοη κέιη πο τεαηη."b

"Οα կ371ηη-γε ευγα σε'η εευσ γεο, bud ajchídeac dejdinn réin dá cinn, San rior '3am ce hacrainn d' diais 'S an ollan reo d-rejdm 3an mojll." "Ná lomaisid mere ho žeáhh, Fáz ziodac c mo caod 'r mo dhom; 'Jur caitrid me 'n Nodlac, le pléireúh Soin az cuid orzain GO21."d

'Νιαιμ ταιμις το τσεας αιμ α τ-γμαιτ, Νίομ ταιγθεάτιας τεασαμ σατη ατη ; Աιμ γιοταμ τη δί τι το σάασαι.dd Νί δ-γμισιτη ατη γεμμ τιο 'η γαιτι'; e Soaoil becei 'ςμισ τηασας 'πο σίαισ, Τμίσ τμμαισ 'σμγ εμσατη θεατη, σαη γαιίι ασατη ατήαμε' 'πο σίαισ, Οα m-bainfride σίοτη ιέαδ σο 'η σμοτη.''

Cuppead chio cupped dom' puez' me, 'S rearats me rior 1 m-dinn; Nion d-rad' no 30 d-dainic na 3adain, 'S zun cuppead me 'nior 30 ceann; Cainic me ann codain 'rain Dhizio,f Uin majoin, 'r í cianad 'cinn, Níon dairbeán rí dada d'a daoid, 'Jur cuaid me 30 d-ci Mac Sinn."g

'San άις αηη, α d-fuajn mere fáilce, Searaiz me ruar 30 ceanh, 'Jur condaiz me comduac leo uajm, 2111 3210021.

21 αρ carao me cuadal h rann. Cuajo me ajn rarzao na z-chuac, 21 αρ dí mo zualaca lom. 21 c njon canajnz me rojpjn de 'n reun-Njon d' jonann 'r cujo orzajn TO211.i

21 αμ δ'έ 30 μαδ δεσσι α μ'αζαιό-γε, Gιοςκαιηη 30 η-ευς le CO21 ; 'S ηα ακειοδάαο ασησυιμε καοι' η 3μέμη, Μαά δ-κυι γι 'ηα Σασσαι 'γ 'ηα Σαιι : καιο ασυγ δεισεαγ σώ 'ηα κεαδάμ, Οευηκαιό γι ρίαε 'συγ 3μεαηη... Qά ! ηαά μεγε σά 'η ησειμε 'ηα μεαςα, 21 ασγαό με 'μ ειίζεαηη CO21 !''j a 13 ré 10m réin a loim'....15 ré ain 10m réin a loime: lit. he let on to my self his bareness. He complained of his ill-treatment.

b oa h5reao. &c lit. if it was left to myself my head---was I let at liberty. c 5jobac, from 5jobo5, a rag---ragged, not bare, unshorn. This line refers to a custom in the locality:--as a protection against the severity of Winter, at the November shearing, part of the back and sides and the flanks were ge. nerally left unshorn

d CO21, a neighboring Protestant farmer whose pasturage was rich and inviting to the poet's half-starved pet, but whose wife, Betty, was noted for her lack of hospitality towards such visitors.

dd Jaoval, a Catholic.

e FAIN', contraction of FAINEAN. a bitter kind of grass.

f an cobam 'ram bnj5j0----cum an cobam annram bnj5j0: to the well to Bridget (Mrs. Walsh) (In regard to annram, my triend, Mr. P H O'Donnell, late of Mt, Mellory, Co. Waterford but now of Hazelton, Pa., a good Irish scholor, says that in his opinion annram is a compound of the simple prepositions. Ann and Ann. and has its English equivalent in 'into' or "unto', a simple, reasonable and apparently correct "solution of the problem."

g 21Jac 51199 a neighboring farmer who hated the multein cordially. The mischievous and predatory wether ne. ver missed any opportunity, that offer ed, of preying on McGlin's substance, or on any body else's, for that matter. His thievish propensities, left him, like Cain, "a tugitive and a vagabond," McGlinn was his most deadly enemy

h cuaval, I do not know the meaning of this word : its spelling is merely phonetical.

Tom's ewes; they would not be equal ly virtuous, had they been similarly situated.

J oc ! ηλά mere τά &c. Oh ! Is it not I who am at the last gasp since I met with Tom's clutch !

hurley, an 20 mai 121 ve juil. '84.

Cum Clódatójn an Jaodajl.

21 Šaoj.-- Cíojm oa lejtju anny an Jaooal oo żajnje čuzam an mj ro, jao auaon rzujobża le "Oéjreać," mau ta a ajnm leo. Jr majż na lejtueaća jao, ta rjao cuuża le céjle zo vear. ać;

> 21]ο έμεας 'η τηο έλη, 21η ια 'ημμ έλος γε α βοης 21ηη σαού εμε το 'η σ-γαμε, Sul τομ γε αη ζαετίμοε ιος.

"Τα le real ann Safrana Muad,', σεμ Déjreac; cja člor μιαή έμη-ηεας αισ μασα, τα ré αηη Safrana Muad, τα ré αηη Umepica? Up čluin τυγα é, a Déjrajf? What is a while there New England (America). Cuip Jaeojlij alu ηα rocajle ro dam,-- Is your brother in Dublin, in Cork, or in Newfoundland? U Saoj, σευηαηη "Déjreac úrαιο ήσμ σε'η rocal "cun," Ν΄ raca-ra μιαή αη μεμήθευμια γιη αηη αση leabαμ ηο pajpeup. Cia b-ruaju ré é a dojž leac? Τα ror azam-ra.

21ηη Αη σρί-ήλαο δ-γέαρργα σε γρεαξ μα Έαμοη ζεαρμα, σεμρ γέ, "όμος εαξla ορσ αξυγ γζαήμα," α η-μοηασ, όμοεας εαξία ορσ αξυγ γζαήημα; αξυγ σεμρ "Dégreac" αμή αηηγ αη σαμα ίζηε σε ceachainao δ-γέαργα, "le αγημή εαραζαγ αμα γίαμσε," δυο ceaps αμεαcaγ α δεμς α η-μοημο "εαραζαγ.'

21ηηγ αη ceuo líne de 'η cúizinad b. γέαρμγα, dejn γέ, "Καιζας γμαζο απ

383 and the second sec

	jinne 'rceac chioo' chorde." bud	Να σεαμημαίο αη βιοσάιιε α δεαμέας
ċe	αης παςτιλό α δέις α η-10ηαο "παιδας	συις σο τίλιητε,
1.	"215μη žeožća caraćzać žnana az ančać duje cojoce. Translation. And	Ιτ κέισιη ίειτ άπουξαό αη εποιόε
	u would get an ugly coughing that	17 cholme phon.
	ould follow off you for ever. O_{joc} , (2)	'S co cochom legr na ofrlid an choice person) off you; cup ojoc, be off.	ata jr jrle,
	An vior, undress; buan viom, (1st.	' Lic j dejt ajn mejrze, man jr ceant
pe	rson) let go of me. "Dead ao thoiz-	'r ir coir), eA	in amac man rhoftrujoe 300." Trans-	21511 Αη αποιόε η άμοε 'η έγ όι ηΔ
la	tion; A Bee spinning you out as a	5-cájnce ;
	d yould be spun.	'Ο ης σεαμησο αρμ αη η.
	ηηγ αη γέατηαο δ- έαμμγα, τα αη το-	braon ojl.
	1, "вејз," гзпјовса спј h-иајпе ајзе	21] Δ τα τά 'μιαή τρέιτε le capajo
	ηγ αηη γίιτε έεμοηα το'η ίαμτεαά α-	 Fjon do cléjde, Mala za mana 'ran cáila za hunz
	γ Δη Δη le ceacc. υμό ceapc Δη	No le do ήηλοι 'r λη célle do dulho 'r do leabuid réin, uo "bejz" a bejt rzníobta man ro;	Τά καμασ ηĵογ buajne, jr μjċ ċujze
	e other "bej5r" should be each, bejo	30 luač, [eul.
		21'r ljon ljon ruar ar an lan-bujo
Jr	σ ηη συμγελό brejce,	the set of the set of the set of the set
	Cajm-ri ó 'η ójoce kéjk;	bjod Ajuzjod Azur ón, bjod rajodnear
21	5 corr le'm vonne an calam,	Αζιγ γσόμ,
-	'S Δ15 buaine 3Δη κοηη le κΔούΔρ;	bioo painceann 30 leon, az an
0	א אוס אאן און אין אין און אין און אין און אין און און אין און און און און און און און און און או	oujne uaral ápo; (mó
"0	21'r σειμ ré 30 спелгол 110m réin: Icuidín! σασλημ 7 Ιμισέ λημ σο leabuiz,	21 τοίλη λουγ τός ceuo μλημ ηίοη σελδαιό ημη 'τ τη λο δί λη βοιτ.
Z	Tain cuinreac breoice o'n papeun!	jn foillre dáin.
		Dà d-reudrainn réin man file no
What harm if it was Manx he gave us		υάρο, 30 ceano το γ3ηίο
	r Irish that bears the sway, at that old accent of Munster he	Ní rouhrinn réin a cojoce ac ao
D	gave us,	CA0111eAO 30 Deo,
That surely can bear no say;		21η σελάτημό τρόμ λ'η άροθευι σά
It will cause us to fight and to wrangle.		cupta ajp bjogajle
It will cause us ruination and pain,		Le Sacrajn mallajze znána; jr
And every other old ill of the past,		ηόρ αη αηρό.
Be	efore the first dawn of day.
	Ucojdíne.	Ir yom ir mon an chuaz, homean
	in the providence of the providence of the	ljonita luat
	21N CR210101N 210101NN 00 can.	(21η bápo rin 00 nuz buajo cap ujle bápo ó roin),
	אןסוגווו גער געלטולטון אוווי אין אין אין אווי	Na'n blar re an bjocajle 30 n-deun.
	biocáile,	καό τε αδμάη αμι,
	Νο αη ροιζή ζαιηις αγ αη 3-colu-	21'ר לגסיס או און און גאין גער אראין און אין אין אין אין אין אין אין אין אין אי
	ze bujoe,	ηλό δ. και λ λ ιειότο ληη.
	αξά τά τι γιαή μαισηθαό η έ αη	Nor cumate agur glore, molad a'r
	σεος σά εμήλςσας	օդօյր
	לע דפוח סס לנונדועל סס לי לט לי סס לי	Do'n cé rin man ir coin oo chuż.
	uż'o oo chojoe.	Διζ Δη ύάρμ υμισε
	αξά' βρόηλό τά ηλ γηλομητε λ δ-	217 a tiz biotaile deinear ouinn an
	Fuil azao ran ojoće,	rlâjnce
	'S má cá cú réin az caoinead na	'S ofbrear 30 cineálta 3ac ajejo
	mílte oc oc ón,	ат ар 5-сројое.

384

211 320021.

OIL CITY, PA. JULY, 15. '84. To the Editor of the Gael:

Dear Sir — In connection with my translation of "The Last Rose of Summer," just published in the Gael, I omitted to state that it is an error to accept that song as written to the air of 'The Groves of Blarney;' which is the same tune as that of 'Castle Hyde," "The Bells af Shandon" and Youghal Harbor": which last is but a translation of the Gaelic song known as "21 A1on Domna13." That "The Last Rese of Summer' cannot be sung to this tune is plain enough to any one acquainted with the song, "The Groves of Blarney": what the true air is, I do not now undertake to decide, but I think it is that of Spanne 21/201.

I send you to-day my translation of, "I Saw from the Beach." of which song versions in Irish have been recently written by Captain Norris, and Mr. D. O'Keeffe of New York. Archbishop MacHale also made a translation of this melody into the vernacular. Although these three translations were in my possession I did not allow myself to become acquainted with any of them lest I should be tempted to borrow the terms or phraseology used by their authors. Bu' now that I have completed mine. I may be allowed to remark, in a general way, that it is ex. tremely difficult to translate the "Melodies' into Irish; and that no man will successfully do it who isvastly inferior to Moore in judgement, imagination. fancy, inventon, pathos and metaphorical sublimity; besides this, he must be thoroughly acquainted with the spoken and written Gaelic.

Yours &c.

WM. RUSSELL.

I SAW FROM THE BEACH.

- Οο σεαμε me ό'η σ-εμαιή η αη ήμαισηη 50 ξιέξεαι,
 - 210η-θάης αιη αη γάιιε 30 η-άίμηη ας τέαζε;

- Οο έλη της τοη σμάιζη τη le κυμηθατό ηλ σμέμης;
 - Όϳ 'η banc ann le rážajl, 'r Jan an rájle 'na Jaodan :
- Jr man rjn é dán moc-zeallamna án mbeata,
 - 'S do cejceann lán-nozanca án roz di n-ajmoeojn;
- 5ας conn air ar rinnceamair ceastra air maioin.
 - Sinn fázann ran d-fuan-cuan 30 h-uaizneac air neoin.
- Νά σμάζο ίμου αμη ξίδημης 30 h-αοιδητη αξ σαιζημού
 - 21 p de pe áp lae, ap áp 5-cjújn 0jdce rám----
- Ταθαιμ αιμ η'αιν σοιη, αιμ η'αιν σοιη κιασαιη-άιμε ηα-τηαισηε,
 -]r fjú a deopa 'ra neulca 'n neojnrolar jr feápp.
- 0! cé η ac d-rájlzeocao an mojméao do carao
 - 'Μαιρι ήμεται αι η μασιαγ ημαύ-διά σρί η α άη ά ή α.
- 'Sa chojoe μαη αη αόμαο σο cúntajtear γαη larajn----
 - Όυς μαις α γάρ-ήηιγεαός το ιαοη αη γίορ-ζράτ!

СОНИН '3 5210ЦІС ОО'Н ОЄІЗСЯС. Сопап--

'Μιτ σατη, α πάιη 'γα έαμμα,

Ce ήμαο Séamur Fava 7 Emon Jeappa, De cujr na'n ladapp σύ app 3ac zeapán, dí o'n Szidpín ví Cloc-an-Scocájn?

Dégresc.----

- Νά'η cojn 30 υ-ταθαρκά κε ηύεαρμα, α Conájn,
- Ναό κόισημ 100 30 ίδημ το άμημ Δηη Δοη ceaco amáin;
- Feuc man oo caitrimío éiroeace 30 ciúin le roíone,
- Le oftceile agur le vearcaint zac aenne.

Conán .---

21η κεαμ τά, αη bean τά, ηο zaprún? 21η ό Nein Jopc τά, ηο ό Vorτún?

211 32000	at. 3
'Νης σαμ αποις σά θ-μηι σ' άις, Gear πο Guaiz ain μασιο πα Scaje?	Dejë ομη αηηγο 326 20η 12, 'S32η γάιζιι '32η αιμ έ leížear.
Dégreac	Jr 'mo rean deantúil zolánta
Erro vo beul 7 ná h-abann vava,	bí ré mear món 'ra m-baile,
No ronidio ann fao roeul Séamuir Faoa;	Cá αηηγο 30 δρόηας μάησα
Όλ η-10ημαρία '3 μμέ κότη ἐμη τοκάη ελίητε,	The out of matter a la suma tell' tomano
Οο ταθαιμο αποιτ σοσ' ιέιτέιστε, 'ξιίησε.	21'r jr 'mo buacajll bocc bj ajn ran,
Adress a martine a starting
(Specially written for THE GAEL).	Όλ ληηγο 30 γοςλημ, γλήη 'S3λη beληη λημ bjż '3e λημ λεημε.
These verses are written in the pure Manster idiom, and are the natural extempore production of	Ir mo oume o'raz Eme le maza
one well versed in it. Some may notice that words are employed which do not appear in the	3μη γμαηταί αηηγο 100 le γασα;
dictionary, but we are told that the late Dr. Mc	3 mceace na rpajipínice o aje 30 h-aje
Hale has compiled a manuscript in which are se-	21 long suaparoal o Scat 30 Scat.
veral thousand words in common use among the people which do not appear in the dictionaries.	און אווחדות לידאקא או אוופ ופ דוסת-אל
people which do not appear in the dictionaries.	Jr znáčač zup leo 'z d'éjpjean an c-ád
A DAMAGE AND A DAMAG	Ciorea réin sac la 30 brac,
сим зеязям велу сејсумы.	31 m-baineann ran annro Do cac.
Ó RUJSTEURD.	versions in fanth here been connected
21 Šeázajn,	'Τά uaral a'r joral αηηγο '3 cuilleam- páo',
	Cujo ofod le clojce s'r cujlle le pán,
ΙΥ FADA me '3 brajt, act ní bíot azam	bjon rolling le cacad a, r ceang le ling
uajn,	5 áô,
צוות רזפעול כעות כעלמב גלמוופ אס סעמוי;	Uzur ceann eile le cuin annra rpunan.
21ηηγα σεαητα δμεάς ήμιμ 3αοταιαμη Οο ιαδαμοαίτε κατ' ο call a η-Θημηη.	Να όμαξταη ησίι ταοξαί 'σαι το υπεάξα
יישני אין אין אין אין אין אין אין אין אין אי	21'r djoë ra m-bajle rao' o,
1г 'то сир сирсаё азиг зотрозао	3 oul σίοη ασηαό αημαιμ bo žão
Do bajnaz aram ra réineac,	3 σίοι εχοιμα πο εεληπαό δό.
Ó ở' ràzar an baile rao' ó Cun soads análl an an such	21 Δμ ηί δίος μαομ ομη αιμ σοίηαη,
Čuŋ ceacc análl agn an saodra,	Na me ceanzallee ré zheim
धटंट ठ टर्व मार वगुठार हर्ष 'ग पाम,	Pé Ajt A m-dualitat ronn me
Cajtriz me bružao ružam le rojone.	Jeozdannn oul ann zan mosli
21' τ υμειό αιμ α ησησό ης σύητσε σύλαμ,	υίοη πο έμοισε 30 σάθας α'r πο τάμε
'S34η 3eanán '3 deunad le aenne.	'z rile,
C'μέγ σαιη ceace ταμ σαοισε αηάιι,	215 cuimnius'o air an am a m-dísinn 's
Ir minic a dior 30 cupica chaizce.	rjúbal na cjile;
Szup d' feapp lom 30 d-rantinn 'ram-	213μγ ροητ γεασυίζαια '3αm, ηο ιμό αδμάμη,
bajle čali,	21 ησιαιζ γειγμελά αξ σμελδά δάιη.
Νυαιμ α δίσηηη αιμ έεαηη ηα η-οιτέε σηδιζτε.	I SAR FRANK AFF FRANK
0,0,0,00	Slán 30 κόι leac anoir, a δμάταιμ,
Ce ηλέ δ-γијι сију по тор 'зат сип	Νή, ι μαηη ' τατη αημ α συμίε ' τη μάσ leac; Νά bjoc μαι τη δυμαιμο ομο,
σεαμμάιη,	21] Δη τζηίοθέαστα Δηίτ 30 Ιμας όμξας.
यटंट गर्न मार्ग्रेट 130m टंपाउंट का उपरांग	(Le dejt leannta.]

BLAINE V FREE TRADE.

We have received six long communications on this head for the last few days, four of which— Messrs. O'Rourke, of Jersey City, Hogan and Rielly, of New York and Major Maher of New Haven favor our views, aud Messrs Durnin of Tangepahoa La,, and Norris of Hartford take an opposite view: Here is Mr. Norris' letter.—

Hartford, July 28, '84.

Mr. M. J: Logan,

Editor of the Gael,

Dear Sir.

I became a subscriber to your paper about two years ago, with the understanding that its object was to promote the use of the Irish language, but in your July issue, you appear to have taken a hand in politics, by favoring the election of the Hon. James C Blaine to the presidency of the United States. In favoring Mr. Blaine for that office you should, in my judgment, have given stronger reasons why Irishmen should vote for him. I am myself, an Irish-American citizen, and also a supporter of that grand old church which has withstood the shock of ages, and for these reasons I cannot conscientiously vote for Mr. Blaine, nor in my judgment can any other Irish-American citizen. especially a Roman Catholic. It is needless for me to tire you with argument on this subject as you have doubtlessly seen in the ably and honestly conducted Irish American papers, proof sufficient to warrant me in my belief. You refer to Mr. Blaine "as the ideal champion on account of his actions and declarations." By his declarations, Mr. Edand declarations. By his declarations, he Know-itor, do you mean when as a member of the Know-nothing party, he favored the passage of a law compelling foreigners, especially Irish, to remain in the country twenty one years before they could have any voice in governmental affairs, no matter how old or intelligent they might be? Also, that it was the intention of the Pope of Rome, and the Catholics to take possession of this country ?

You cite the case of ex-Mayor Grace of New York as an instance "of the bigotry of American demo-crats towards Catholics." It is in my judgment more reasonable to suppose that the opposition was directed more particularly towards Tammany's rule or vain policy. There is not probably in this broad land a stronger advocate of Catholicism than the Hon. Francis Kernan of the Empire state, and yet he has been honored with high political positions, United States senator &c., and this gentleman, you will remember attended the Chicago convention and strongly advocated the nomination of Mr. Cleveland, and that his ringing voice and eloquence, will be thrown in the scales in favor of his election I have 'nt the slightest doubt. Be assured, Mr. Editor, that I am not an enthusiast on politics. I love right, and I hate wrong, and will denounce wrong no matter from what source it comes nei-ther do I look for political favors, nor do I pen this note for a consideration of dollars and cents. I am actuated solely by the desire that the grand old institutions of America should be perpetuated. For the past twenty years the government has been conducted in the interest of the office holders, some honorable exceptions I must admit. The most gigantic frauds have been committed and covered up in a manner and fashion that this generation or in fact the life of any nation has never seen equaled.

It is to the end that this state of affairs should cease, and that the institutions of gloious Columbia be perdetuated that we desire the defeat of James G. Blaine. I am firmly convinced that the best interest of the country demands a change. A thorough over-hauling of the government accounts of the past twenty years, will, in my judgment have a salutary effect on the future of ourgreat country, expose and punish the rascals, that it may serve as a warning to future comers. Firm ly believing Cleveland & Hendricks will do the work, I will, if God spares my life, vote for them with a hearty good will.

Very Respectfully. Richard D. Norris.

Mr. Norristhinks we should give stronger reasons why Irishmen should vote for Mr. Blaine: As we control but one vote, nor seek to, we shall state why that will be cast for Mr. Blaine in November if we live. We shall first look to our bread and butter-next to sentiment. We have voted the Democratic ticket heretofore, but now we find we have no Democratic party to vote for. About onethird of the Democracy and about the same number of the Republicans are Free Traders. These have chosen Mr. Cleveland for their standard bearer. The Protectionists have chosen Mr. Blaine. Then Free-Traders and Protectionists are going to be the parties of the future, and believing that Free Trade would ruin the working element of the country, we shall take our stand in the ranks of the Protectionists-which is going to be the democratic party of the future.

Mr. Norris accuses Mr. Blaine of entertaining know-nothing sentiments, when he was editor of a certain newspaper, but if this be all his proof it goes for nothing, for the paid editor of a paper must write for his employers-not his own private sentiments. And, as far as newspapers are concerned, does Mr. Norris know that some of those Irish-American papers which he lauds so much are owned and controlled by Orangemen and Freemasons? We assure him that they are. And if Mr. Norris does not know we shall tell him that the Democratic leaders of New York were, and are today, know-nothings, and that the head of their ticket showed it when he opposed the nomination of Mr. Purcell for Secretary of State, because he was a Catholic, and yet the Republicans nominated and elected a Catholic Irishman, General Carr, to that office ! Which party, then, are the knownothings? What about the 40,000 democratic know-nothings who voted against the Catholic nominee for Mayor of the city, though an anti-Tammany man, and put forward by the Irving Hall and County Democracy? Mr. Norris seems to think that he was the nominee of Tammany Hall. No such thing. And were it not for the strength of Tammany's Catholic vote he would be left out in the cold, which he deserved as far as the manliness was concerned, for when he got into office he acted traitor to those who elected him in trying to curry favor with the implacable enemies of the race which he disgraced.

The Catholic vote of New York City is cne-half he entire vote. Is it not a palpable fact that a union has been formed by the supporters of Cleve land, both Republican and Democratic, to subvert the natural influence of that vote? When the wolves enter the fold it is time for the sheep to look out. What has brought the Joneses, the Bennetts the Beechers, &c. to nominate Cleveland ? He is their candidate. The plain Democracy has no candidate. Therefore, Mr. Blaine, receiving the unanimous nomination of the wage-workers of the Republican party against the combined exertion of the kid-gloved kickers and the Federal office-holders, we look upon him as the real Democratic nominee. All who vote for Cleveland will vote for the worst element in our political system. Is it not a condition of this nomination by the Republicans. that in case of election none of the Federal officeholders shall be disturbed. Where, then, will the change be ? Since his advent to office he has consalted the Republicans on every bill he signed and vetoed and ignored the Democratic party altogether. In fact, Cleveland is the Republican candidate pure and simple, and that of the most intollerant type of Republicanism.

Something more than a sentiment or the personalities of candidates is at stake in this election. The issue is clear: Free-Trade versus Protection. Those against Free Trade will vote for Mr. Blaine if they do not stultify their convictions, and those in favor of it will vote for Cleveland regardless of past party affiliations. Personalities should be left aside, for Cleveland is as much open to unfavorable criticism on this head as any candidate that could be named. His action on the Five Cent Bill, where hundreds of thousands of dollars were at stake, could be construed in various ways.

It has been designedly sought to hide the real issue of the coming election under the veil of personalities. The real issue to the working man in the coming struggle is his bread and butter. Let him join the Free Trade party to pauperize himself, if he will, or the Protectionist and secure to himself fair wages. Then the issue clearly is, Cleveland and Free Trade and the pauper wages of Europe against Blaine and Protection and fair American wages. Mr. Cleveland has vetoed every measure tending to benefit labor during his short term of office. Are the working men going to put him in a more important position ?

In publishing Mr. Norris' communication we have discharged what we consider our duty to the readers of the Gael who differ irom us in political opinions. He having so fully and ably covered the points which others might reproduce, we shall close the columns of the Gael to their further discussion.

Send the Gael to your friends in the Old Country, two copies for a year for One Dollar. Your triends will be glad to hear from you in that way.

DR. MACNISH'S ADDRESS Continued

Were a comparison instituted between the condition of Celtic learning in Great Britain and Ireland when Prichard's well-known work was published, or even when Zeuss gave to the world his admirable "Grammatica Celtica," and the manner in which Celtic literature is now cultivated by those whose venerable inheritance it is, it would be found that a vast improvement has taken place in a commendable direction, and that, mutatis mutandis, to Celtic scholars in the study of their own literature, the description which Virgil gives of a sight that Æneas witnessed as, himself unseen, he looked upon those who were rearing the walls of Carthage -the city of Dido, is to a large extent applicable. "Instant ardentes Tyrii, pars ducere muros, Molirique arcem, et manibus subvolvere saxa.

O fortunati ! quorum jam moenia surgunt."

The fondness for claiming a very remote antiquity which pervades the members of the Celtic family, is exemplified in the well-known story of a MacLean, who, when the conversation turned on the deluge and the manner in which its ravages were avoided, maintained that the MacLeans disdained to take shelter in the Ark, for the very good and independent reason that they had a boat of their own.

In the preface to his "Grammatica Celtica," p. 11, Zeuss states, "that the Irish language claims for itself the first place and the largest diligence in the cultivation and study of it, not only in consequence of the larger fertility of the forms of the language, but also in consequence of the more abundant monuments that have been preserved in old Irish MSS., by which the British MSS. of the same age, or rather the Welsh (which doubtless are the only MSS. that reach the age of the Irish MSS:), are far excelled as well in number as in the fulness of their contents." To the explicit authority of Zeuss every deference must be paid. There is thus a compliance with the Irish proverb, dean gach aon duine buidheach m a fheudair : "make every person grateful if it be possible." Irish legends assign a very early date to the peopling of Ireland by Partholan, Nemedh, Firbolgs, Tuatha de Dananus, Gaels, Milesians, or Scots : here are the names of the leaders of immigrants that found. their way, at different times, into Ireland, or of the tribes themselves which, according to the legends of Ireland, arrived at different periods in that country.

There is an Irish saying, Inmain tainig o thir tenn—"Beloved is he who came from a brave land," which applies to the far-off ancestors of the Irish people. The ancient literature of Ireland is vast and varied. Irish writers were wont to speak of the hosts of the books of Erinn. Though many of those old books have been irreparably lost, there still exists an immense quantity of Irish literature, In the libraries of Ireland and England, as well as in Continental libraries, there are numerous Irish MSS. To obtain even an imperfect knowledge of the more useful portions of Irish literature demands a large expenditure of time and pains. A. mong the many industrious and able and patriotic Irish scholars of this century, there is one in particular whose name is to be mentioned with every respect-one whose memory is to be gratefully cherished by every student of Irish literature,one whe brought to bear on the literature of his country an extraordinary amount of industry and patience as well as ability,-one who has constructed by his indefatigable exertions, an easy path for all who may desire to have some knowledge of the literary treasures of Ireland-one who was as modest as he was scholarly and patriotic. I refer to the late Eugene O'Curry, the first professor of Irish History and Archaeology in the Catholic University of Ireland. Matthew Arnold pays this beautiful tribute to the great and modest Irish scholar: "Obscure Scaliger of a despised literature, he deserves some weightier voice to praise him than the voice of an unlearned belletristic trifler like me; he belongs to the race of the giants in literary research and industry,-a race now almost extinct. Without a literary education and impeded too, it appears, by much trouble of mind and infirmity of body, he has accomplished such a thorough work of classification and description for the chaotic mass of Irish literature, that the student has now half his labor saved and needs only to use his materials as Eugene O'Curry hands them to him." It was in 1860, that O'Curry's Lectures on the MSS. Materials of ancient Irish History were published. Mr. Skene, one of the ablest Celtic scholars of our day, thus praises O'Curry's Lectures : "They are most interesting and instructive, and for the masterly and complete survey taken of the subject as well as for accurate and minute detail, they are almost unexampled in the annals of literature." The student reads with unmingled admiration for the modesty, the patience and the ability of O.Curry, his Lectures to which I have just referred as well as his Lectures on the Manners and Customs of the Ancient Irish. The latter lectures he was not not allowed to publish, for his career came to a sudden end. Dr. Sullivan, another Irish scholar of reputation, has performed the duties of editor with remarkable faithfulness, and with commendable reverence for the worth of O'Carry. O'Jurry was an Irish Gael of whom every Celt has reason to be pardonably proud. In his preface to the Lectures which he himself was able to edit, he says ; "When the Catholic University of Ireland was established and its staff of professors, from day to day, announced in the public papers, I felt the deepest anxiety as to who the professor of Irish History should be, if there should be one.  At this time, however, I can honestly declare that it never entered my mind that I should, or ought to be, called to fill this important situation, simply because the course of my life in Irish History and Antiquities had always been of a silent kind. No person knows my bitterly felt deficiencies better than myself. And it never occurred to me that I should have been deemed worthy of an honour which, for these reasons, I should not have presumed to seek." Such are the modest terms in which O'Curry speaks of himself ; though a casual glance at his Lectures will suffice to convince any intelligent reader that his labors were enormous, that his ability for deciphering old MSS. was remarkable, and that, not only his fellow countrymen, but all lovers of Celtie learning, owe him a very deep debt of gratitude indeed. William Livingstone, perhaps the most talented Gaelic bard of this country, thus extols O'Curry:

"Eirinn uaine tog do cheann, 'S na bi' nis mo fo ghlasaibh teann, Do chainnt oirdheire oil do'd chlainn A thogas cliu le gloir neo fhann, Air Eoghan gu buaidh ha tir nam beann 's nan tuil an gaol ort,

Sean Albainn chruaidh na morachd aosda,
Toirt furain duit le lamhan sgaolte,
A dh' aineoin co their nach faod i Eoghain gu buaidh."

Leabhar na h-uidhre, The Book of Leinster, The Book of Ballymote, The Leabhar breac, The Yellow Book of Lecan, The Book of Lecan, The Book of Lismore—such are the principal books of ancient date that pertain to Irish literature.

Leabhar na h-widhre, or the book of the dun, (dark grey, is said to have received its name from the fact that Fergus MacRigh, who was an Ulster prince of great fame, appeared after his death and recited the Tain Bo Cwailgne, or the cattle prey of Cooley in Louth—a tale which is, by common consent, allowed to form the Iliad of Irish literature. St. Ciaran, thereupon wrote down the tale at the dictation of Fergus in a book which he made from the hide of his pet cow. The cow, from its color, was called the cdhar or dun cow, and from that circumstance the book was ever afterwards known as Leabhar na h-widhre.

2.—Of the Book of Leinster, which was composed in the early part of the 12th century by Finn, Bishop of Kildare, O'Curry writes in warmest terms of praise, maintaining that there was not in Europe any nation save the Irish, that would not long since have made a literary fortune out of such a volume.

3.—The Book of Ballymote was written in the County of Sligo, about the close of the 14th century. It is said, that there scarcely exists an O' or a Mac at the present day who may not find in the Book of Ballymote the name of that particular remote ancestor whose name he bears as a surname, as well as the time at which he lived, what he was, and from what more ancient time he again was descended.

4 — The Leabhar brew, or Speckled Book, appears to have been written in Duna Doighre, on on the Galway side of the Shannon, about the close of the 14th century, by the members of the literary family of the MacÆgans.

5.—Leabhar buidhe Leacain was compiled about 1390, by a family of MacFirbises, in Sligo.

6.—Leabhar Lecain was compiled in 1416, in Sligo, by Gilla Ioa Mor MacFirbis.

7.—The Book of Lismore is so called because it was discovered in 1814, by workmen who were employed by the Duke of Devonshire in repairing his ancient Castle of Lismore, in the County of Waterford.

The Annals of the Four Masters; such is the name of a monument of Irish learning and patriotism to which there attaches a peculiar interest, owing to the circumstances amid which it was composed and the comprehensive purpose which it seeks t accomplish. O'Curry thus writes ; "In whatever point of view we regard these Annals, they must awaken feelings of deep interest and respect,  as the largest collection of natural, civil, military and family history ever brought together in this or perhaps any other country." It was John Colgan who gave the name, The Annals of the Four Masters, to that work which was composed principally by four friars of the order of St. Francis, in the County of Donegal. The Annals of the Four Masters, written in Irish Gaelic, begin with the deluge which, following the Septuagint, they date Anno Mundi, 224. The Annals came down to 1616, and, therefore, embrace 4500 years of a nation's history. Sir James MacIntosh thus commends the Annals of the Masters, " o other nation possesses any monument of literature in its present spoken langnage, which goes back within several centuries of these chronicles." The Annals of the Four Masters, the result of most patriotic faithfulness and unremitting diligence, beautifully verify the statement which Michael O'Clery makes in the Dedication . "Nothing is more glorious, more respectable, or more honourable than to bring to light the knowledge of anciont authors." Nach ffuil ni as glormaire, agus as airmittnighe, onoraighe ina firs s andachta na seanughdar.

John O'Donovan, another Irish scholar of great learning, has edited The Annals of the Four Masters and has added very useful annotations. Todd, Hennesey, Petrie, Joyce, such are the names of other Irish scholars who have done much in various channels of research to advance the cause of Irish learning. There is a legend to the effect that Finn MacCumhaill was, upon a certain occasion, hunting near Sliabh non Ban, in the County of Tipperary. As he was standing near a well, a strange woman appeared and filled a silver tankard at the well. Finn followed her unperceived, until she came to the side of a hill, where a concealed door opened suddenly and she walked in.' Finn attempt ed to follow her, but the door was shut so quickly that he was only able to place his hand on the door-post with his thumb inside. It was with great difficulty that he was able to extract his thumb which, bruised as it was, he put into his mouth to ease the pain. No sooner had he done so, than he found himself possessed of the gift of foreseeing future events. This gift was not always present, but onfy when he bruised or chewed the thumb between his teeth. Such is the history of the phrase, "Finn's thumb of knowledge," and of the aphorism,

"Tabhair tordog fod' dhead fis

Is na leig sinn an eislis."

"Put thy thnmb of knowledge to thy tooth And leave us not in ignorance."

When we interpret that aphorism in its practical sense, it is to be cheerfully admitted that the Irish scholars of our day are doing earnest honor to it. To be continued

PROF. REHRIG ON THE IRISH LANG-UAGE.

Continued from page 380.

Ger., korb ; Swedish, korg ; German, farbe ; Swedish, farg; the f in the Latin words faba, facere, filius, filia, fabulari, etc., becomes h in Spanish haba, hacer, hijo, hija, hablar). In the Greek we find dialectic changes, such as Ionie kos for pos, Ionic kote often used by Herodotus for pote. Ionic koteros, for poteros, etc. The Greek hippos appears in Latin under the form of equus (p=qu); the Greek numeral pente (five) is the Latin quinque (p=qu); the Latin quatuor is recognised in the Gothic fidvor (qu=f); hence, the other Cermanic words fior, four, vier, etc. As a further illustration, in Japanese, for instance, the sounds f and hare in a sort of fluctuating state, so that they are continually flowing one into the other; and the same sign or syllabic character is pronounced with f as well as with h. So we have also, in Mantchoo two forms for certain words, one with a labial, the other with a guttural ; e. g., fakouri, (drawers), and khakouri ; foulgiyan (red) and khoulgiyan ; fako (rampant) and khako, etc. So we have in Latin quisquam and quispiam; namque and nempe etc. Another distinguishing feature between Irish and Kymric is, where s stands in the former, the latter has often h. Irish has this in common with Sanskrit, Latin, German, and Slavonian, which have s, while Zend [Old Bactrian], Persian and Greek have h in the corresponding words : e.g. Irish sen old, Kymric hen; Irish salann salt Kymric halen ; so, also in Latin sal salt], Greek hals ; so we have in Sanskritasmi [I am], in Zend ahmi, etc., in Latin sex, septem, super, in Greek hex hepta, hyper [huper] etc. It also happens that while Irish preserves the guttural, Kymric, instead of replacing it by the labial, as we have seen, simply drops it ; e. g. Irish tech [house], Welsh ti ; Irish nocht night], Welsh nos ; Irish teglech household], Welsh teulu, etc. There are, however, also, now and then, coincidences to be found between the two branches, Gaelic and Kymric, either in the form of words or in grammatical construction. We shall here, in passing, allude only to a few of them.. Thus, for instance, when two definite nouns come together, two substantives that should have the definite article and stand in a geditive relation to each other, as the Lord of t'e world: the last noun only will admit of the article so that it would be "Lord of the world." This is expressed in Irish by Tighearna an domhain : even with three or more such substantives, only the last would be preceded by the article, as for instance, the servant of the son of the king, would be in Welsh gwas mab y brenin. (Exactly the same takes place in Arabic, where the Lord of the world, or rather of the worlds, is expressed in Sura I. of the Coran, by rabbulalamina.) In Gaelic and Kymric, names of countries are preceded by the definite article (as they are also in French), viz., an Frainc, la France ; an Albain, l'Ecosse ; an Spain, l'Espagne, etc. In Gaelic as well as in Kymric, we see adjectives following the substantive : thus, a great man would be in Irish fear mor and in Welsh gwr mawr. And where there is an exception to this rule, we find it to be the same in both branches ; e. g. the words old, true, first, precede the substattive ; Irish, sean, fior, priomh, Welsh hen, gwir, prif. When an adjective follows two or more nouns connected by the conjunction and, then it agrees, if they are of different genders only with the last noun. Thus, a good man and woman is in Irish expressed fear agus bean mhaith and in Welsh by dyn a dynes dda. In Gaelic and Kymric, we see demonstrative pronouns joined to nouns, taking the last place ; e. g. Irish an fear so Welsh y gwr hwn ; just as the French would say, cet homme ci. In both branches, the compound numbers are formed in the same manner, e.g., thirty is in Irish deich 's f ichead, in Welsh deg ar hugain , filty in Irish deich 's da fhichead, in Welsh deg a deugain, etc. The consuetudinal has, in both branches, similar forms. e.g., Irish bidhir, Welsh bgddi, Irish bidhis, Welsh bgddan etc. Similarly as in Irish, a his) before a vowel does not aspirate [a anam, his soui], but a [her does aspirate the vowel by inserting $h \ a \ -anam$ her soul, and as a [their] causes n to be prefixed [a n-anama, the r souls', -ei and en in Welsh, have h prefixed to words beginning with a vowel: Also before consonants, the construction of ei is somewhat analogous to Irish. Thus tad which means father, preceded by ei, appears as ei thad, her fa ther, and as ei dad, his father. In Gaelic as well as in Kymric, the verb generrlly holds the first place in a sentence, then follows the subject or nominative, and after that the accusative. [We meet with the same construction, in a measure, at least, in French, e. g., "Suivent les nomsdes provinces;" in a few instances—determined by grammar; also, in Spanish and Arabic, something similar is seen.]

Celtic, or rather Celt, (Kelt) is, as Pausanias (Lib. I., chap. 3,) informs us, the name which these people gave to themselves, and which the Greeks, as late as the third century before our era, applied to the Celts on the Continent, and which became subsequently extended to the other Celtic tribes. According to Dio Caasius, Celt is identical in meaning with Gallus, and there seems to be no doubt but that originally the names Galli, Gallia, Galatae Celtae were of one and the same root, and that Gallia and Celtae denoted one and the same people; so also Galatae, which afterwards received the more restricted meaning of Celts, in Asia. Also the name Vo ea was in use as to the generic term of the Celtic race. Vo ca re appears in Wales, We Wallach, Wallon, and is fundamentally the same word as we have in Gillus, Gallia, Gau ; the letters g or h, and w or f, interchanging, in languages, frequently with each other. Thus, Wales, German Wallis, is in French Gales ; the adjective of it is gillois. So we have Cornguales and Cornwall, which has been considered as standing for Cornu-gal iae ; while another derivation might be simply from the name which Saxons and Angles used to give to the remnants of the Britons, viz. Corn Weales and Brit-Weales, meaning inhabitants of Wales. We have already spoken of the permutation of gutturals and labials, and will only, in a more particular way, refer here to the French guepe (for guespe) and the German wespe, English wasp; the French guerre, English war : French gater [for gister] and the English waste, also to proper names, such as Guillame and William : Guelf and Welf, etc. Thus, Gal=Wal : it leads us to Old Celtic gallu, to be powerful, mighty, great ; and gallu means also power, strength, violence. (This connects ith the German Ge-walt, the Icelandic valld, balld, r, ball, r, bali, the Gothic baldo, English bold, the Sanscrit adjective balin, the verb bal balami, which reappears in the Latin valco, validus, the French valoir, English value, etc.) Hence Gal=Wal means mighty, great : mighty men : then those that violently immigrate, and powerfully invade the country, who appear to the inhabitants as hostile people, enemies : thus it means an enemy, and subsequently, when hostilities had subsided, a stranger, foreigner.

To be continued.

We have received No. 16 of the Gaelic Journal. This journal should be in the library of every Irishman. Is it not singular that our learned men exhibit such apathy in its regard? A journal conducted by some the best scholars of their country.

Jersey City July 29 1884.

Mr. Logan.

This was written on reading Michael Sheridans translation of O'Donnell Aboo, the man who taught me to read the Irish tongue, the feelings are Irish, and yet fear you will condemn it to that silent purgatory of darkness-the waste bas-ket, for the faults are many. But 'tis the feelings of the soul of a faithful friend, and lover of the Gael. John Coleman.

Well indeed, friend Coleman you need not be afraid we will condemn it to the waste basket, nor anything coming from one who has proved by his acts that he deserves his name to be recorded among the honored champions of his country's language, and in the First Journal with the impress of that language on its "forehead." - Ed.)

TO MICHAEL SHERIDAN.

My lone heart fleets over each dark bounding billow,

To the land that I love, and one friend who is dear, My spirit droops o'er him, like the ever bent will low.

With a smile for his joys, for his sorrows a tear.

And oh, were I near, when false friends would assail him,

With this arm, while living, I'd hold them at bay. As first son of the Gael other ages will hail him.

In his loved Celtic tongue, they'l yet sing this sweet lav.

My heart ever loved the wronged tongue of my father,

That old tongue of our hero-soul'd bard, faimed Ossian.

I loved its light notes, even its sadness I'd rather Than all other music, with its light airy sheen.

'Twas this friend of my soul who first taught me to read.

The sweet songs of our bards, with their soft silvery roll.

At their strains low and wild, my warm heart oft did bleed, (soul.

Every song smiles in sunshine, every strain has a And oh ! what a fountain of witching endearment.

Enshrine every dear word, they have woven in song,

At their sweetness I smiled, and oft the hot tears went, Through the nerves of my frame, they rushed tremb ing along,

21]ο currle, mo mujunín, mo reójuín, mo leana,

210 ελιίη σελη εμίσηλ, πο μίη ζιι, Αγ mo நாகு,

When woven in song. these fond words fall like manna.

Round each child of the Gael, who loves Erin go bragh.

Then here's to you Michael, my truly loved friend

Ir mjan ljom an ceanzan, a b-ruil cú μάητα Δηη,

May you live long in Erin, its dear words to blend, And tear back from the tyrant each true Irishman. If they're chained to his rude tongue, be yours to translate (true.

Every sentence they write, when to Ireland they 're When they front him with frowns, and with fire, and with hate,

Like that soul thrilling song of O'Donnell Aboo.

SEN FIMENTS OF OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Cal. J, Deasy, per P. McGreal.

Cork, Ireland Rev. J. Stevenson.

D. C. H. Murray.

Dak. J. J. O'Connor .- We shall have the books soon!

Ill. J. McCauly, Hogarty, Clancy, Darcey per Mr. Darsey,

Mass. J. Murphy J. J. O'Sullivan, J McNally-J. J. O'Brien, P. Kinnier, J. Barry. - Books in a few days.

Mo. M. H Maddock-

Minn. M. Conroy, L. Garrity, J. Cronan P, H. Barrett, F. McHale per Mr. Barrett.

Md. T. Cummings.

Neb. J. A. O'Donoghue.

N.Y. J. Kelly E J Moriarty per J Cromien O Cavanagh, C. Mrnning F. Butler. Miss M: A. Lavin. per Mr. T Erley, J Fitzsimmons, M O'Connor D Haynes per Mr. McTighe. P A Dunne, P. E Keefe Hon. D Burns, P McGrath, the Misses Brannigan Comer, Duffy Downing, Needham and O'Neill per Hon. D Barns.

Oregon. J Sullivau.

Pa. P J Cole. J Lyons, per J J Lyons. E Burns P J Crean, T F McCarthy, H J O'Neill, per Mr. McCarthy, Hon Denis O'Lenihan, per P. Gibbons P Gibbons T C O'Donovan.

Tex. M Casey per P Halley Memphis Tenn.

Fla. D O'Keefe. Mr. O'Keefe says that he has every hope of being able to organize a good Irish class in Ft. Dade. Books in a few days:

Va. T. Kelly.

Ireland Mrs. J Larkin and J M Stack, Co Kerry per M Stack, Beavermeadow Pa. J P Crean, Ballymonelly Co Mayo, Per P J Crean, Phlla. Pa.

Brooklyn T Erley, Dunning, J I Donovan, J. Peters, Mrs. Fitzsimmons.

All our correspondents are very enthusiastic regarding the language, and are savguine as to the ultimate success of the movement for its preservation.

The N. Y. societies are getting along splendidly. However, they are yet a little behind Brooklyn. They have to found a journal, however small, to justify themselves before the public in claiming to be even up to Brooklyn. We understand that they are about to publish Prof. Rœhrig's essay on the Irish Language in pamphlet form. There is hardly a need for this as the Gael will devote three and four pages to it, until it is finished, after Dr. Mac-Nish's is concluded.

Seo é rlaince minic a tiz azur rlaince minic nac o-ciz; ac b' peann liomra 30 ם-כוסכפלבים אואוכ אבל ס-כוז אוסר אוסאca na n minic a tis!

This toast was drunk by a lady in the prsence of one of her admirers who paid her frequent visits.

REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE and to TRADE.

FENTON BROOK FARM

Lying among the Berk Shire Hills of Mass., advertised in our last, will be Traded for city property.

Also, other equally desirable, improved and un improved property in various parts of city. Farms for Sale and to Trade. A handsome 15 acre Farm with a fine orchard and a 7 roomed cottage, barn, &c. at Rockaway L I. an hour's drive from the city, cheap. This farm is to trade for City proper-It is free and clear. tv

Bergen st. n Underhill av. 3 s brick,	$4.000
" " Troy av 2 s f 11 rooms	1.600
Classon av n Pacific st 2 s f 11 room	I8.00
Carlton n Myrtle av 4 s b 16 rooms	9.000
Decatur st n Patchen av, a neat 2 story 7
roomed cottage	1.400

RATES of COMMISSION .-

Letting & Collecting	5	per	cent.
Sales-City PropertyWhen the		"	"
Consideration exceeds $2.500,	1	C.L.	**
Country Property	2.50		"
Southern & Western Property	9
No Sales negotiated at this offi	ce a	nder	$25.
in small sales where the considerat	1011 0	loes	100 amount to two thousand (2.000) doll	ars t	ne I	papers will be furnished gratis by the office			Logan.

Real Estate & Insurance Broker,

814 Pacific st. Brooklyn. NOTARY PUBLIC and Commissioner of DEEDS. Louns N. gutiuted.

M. DEELY

MERCHANT TAILOR,

335 Gold St.

Cleaning, Altering and Repairing promptly done.

JOSEPH O'CONNOR.

STAIRBUILDER, Mobile, Ala.

27 Conti St.

Stairs with Rail, Newal Bannister, everything Ready for putting up or for Shipping Accord ing to any Design or Plan.

Give me a Chance.

MUNN & CO., of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, inue to act as Solicitors for Patents, Caveats, T MUNN & CO., of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, con-tinue to act as Solicitors for Patents, Caveats, Trade Marks, Copyrights, for the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany, etc. Hand Book about Patents sent free. Thirty-seven years' experience. Patents obtained through MUNN & CO. are noticed in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, the largest, best, and most widely circulated scientific paper. §3.20 a year. Weekly. Spiendid engravings and interesting in-formation. Specimen copy of the Scientific Amer-ican sent free. Address MUNN & CO., SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN Office, 261 Broadway, New York.

ADVERTISERS

Can learn the exact cost of any proposed line of Advertising in American Papers by addressing Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Adv'g Bureau, 10 Spruce St., N.Y.

DO YOU KNOW LORILLARD'S CLIMAX Plug Tobacco

with Red Tin Tag, Rose Leaf Fine Cut Chewing, Navy Clippings, and Black. Brown and Yellow SNUFFS are the best and cheapest, quality considered?

Chicago, July 19, 1884

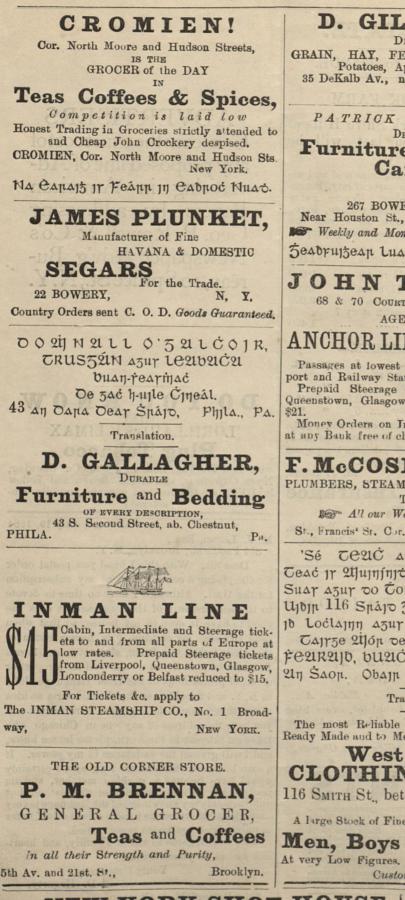

M. J. Logan, Esq., 814 Pacific st., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Sir. With this I hand you postal order for 60c., being a continuation of my subscription for the Gael. Although I have no time to devote to the acquirement of the language, it does me good to have it even in my house, so that when dead and gone my children may have a reminder that their father was IRISH, at least in sentiment. I should be glad if you would send me a report or detail of proceedings of the Irish Language clubs in N.Y. and Brooklyn so that I could form an idea of whether I could form a club here or not. If you have the address of any one in Chicago who takes an interest in the work. please let me know, and I will give all the assistance in my power. If a club had been started here long ago, I certainly would have become a working member, and am ready at any time to organize an association, but unfortunately my knowledge of the language is very limited, and there seems to be a "dead calm" as far as public Irish sentiment is concerned.

With best regards to self and family, and heartiest wishes for your success.

Yours fraternally, J. D. Hagarty.

3912 Butterfield st. Chicago.

D. GILGANNON,

DEALER IN GRAIN, HAY, FEED and PRODUCE, Potatoes, Apples, Fruits &c., 35 DeKalb Av., near Macomber Square, BROOKLYN.

PATRICK O'FARRELL, DEALER IN

Furniture,

Carpets. Bedding &c., 267 BOWERY,

New York. Weekly and Monthly Payments Taken. Seadruizean Luac na Pizinne ann reo

JOHN TAYLOR,

68 & 70 COURT STREET, BROOKLYN,

AGENT For

ANCHOR LINE STEAMERS

Passages at lowest rates to and from any Serport and Railway Station in Ireland.

Prepaid Steerage Ticket from Liverpool, Queenstown, Glasgow, Londonderry or Belfast

Money Orders on Ireland payable on demand at any Bauk free of charge, at lowest rates.

F. McCOSKER & SON, PLUMBERS, STEAM & GAS FITTING & FIX.

TURES.

All our Work Warranted.

St., Francis' St. Cor. of Jackson, Mobile Ala.

'Sé TEUR AN TUOD SIUR AN Teac ir Muninice le Cavaise. Déanca Suar azur to Comar a Ceannact.

υιση 116 Spájo 3αθληπα, ειση τράιο-18 Lociann azur Sjocan, bRUUCLIN.

TAITJe 2110p De CADAIje Opeaz Do FEARAID, BUACAILID 7 MALRAID, 21η ΒΑΟμ. ΟβΑΙμ ČΕΛηηλό η'Αμμόελός.

Translation.

The most Reliable House to buy Clothing, Ready Made and to Measure, is the West Side CLOTHING HOUSE, 116 SMITH St. bet. Pacific & Dean Sts. BROOKLYN. A large Stock of Fine Clothing for Men, Boys & Children, At very Low Figures.

Custom Work a SPECIALTY.

NEW YORK SHOE HOUSE. Brooklyn Store, 189 Columbia St.