

The Loughnane brothers memorial now completed by Messrs, Regan Bros., monument-alists, Loughrea, reflects the highest credit for design and workmanship on these energetic and scientific sculptors.
The memorial, which takes the form of a large Celtic Cross (interlaced on all four sides), die-stone and three base stones, reaches a height of almost 13 feet. It is scientifically proportioned and massive in appearance and is at present being erected in Shanaglish Cemetery, where it will stand as a worthy token to the memory of those heroic brothers who were brutally murdered by Crown Forces during the Anglo-Irish war.
